

INTERNATIONAL LABOR FEDERATION FORMED

Ground Laid for Future Organization on More Solid Basis to Effect Reforms Demanded.

SESSIONS COME TO CLOSE

Gompers Attends and Opposes Several Resolutions That Are Proposed—Many Addressed.

By The Associated Press

AMSTERDAM, Saturday, Aug. 3.—The international labor congress, at which a new international federation was formed, came to an end shortly before 10 o'clock tonight, with many speeches from the representatives of the various nations. From the speeches it could be gathered that even after four years of war, workmen could meet to consider their welfare without more than an occasional exchange of sharp words.

It cannot be said that a great amount of practical work was accomplished at this first meeting, but ground was laid for the future, which promises to prove fruitful in reforms of social questions upon which the workers of all nations are urging action. The last hours of the congress were spent in discussing a number of important resolutions with regard to the league of nations, the socialist movement, and the situation of Russia and Hungary, all of which were accepted by the congress. Only the American delegates voted against the resolutions, while the British were absent, owing to the necessity of catching a cross channel steamer Samuel Gompers, president of the American federation of labor, explained that the Americans agreed almost entirely with the spirit of all the resolutions, but that, owing to the mandate, they could not vote for them.

Several delegation leaders spoke of their hopes for the future. Mr. Gompers saying that the Americans would do all in their power to further legislation for improvement of the condition of the workers of all countries. Herr Legien told the correspondent that he thought the international movement would prove successful and that the workers of all countries would get together. He was fully satisfied that in view of the war, he said, as were all the German workmen.
